

Risk Warnings

This document is provided to you, as a retail client, in compliance with the rules of the Financial Services Authority ("FSA"). This document is provided to help you understand the nature and extent of the risks associated with investing in a SIPP and in holding certain types of investments within your SIPP.

General

The tax benefits and governing law for SIPPs may change in the future.

Your benefits are dependent upon a number of factors. Although not a complete list, these factors include future contribution levels, the age at which you commence benefits and external influences such as investment returns, inflation, interest rates, annuity rates and charges.

The investment returns on your fund may be less than those shown in any illustrations you may receive from us, or obtain yourself using our calculations tools.

The SIPP is offered on an execution-only basis without pensions advice.

The SIPP and/or the investment services described may not be suitable for you. If you have any doubts about the suitability of the SIPP or you need advice, you must consult a suitably qualified financial adviser.

Transfers In

By transferring other pension benefits into your SIPP you may be giving up the right to guarantees in the form of benefits, the amount you will receive and also the level of increases that will be applied to your pension in future.

You may be giving up the right to receive a terminal bonus on with-profit pension plans.

A penalty may be applied to your existing pension plan if it is transferred.

We offer an execution-only service and recommend that you seek professional advice from a suitably qualified financial adviser if you are considering transferring existing pension benefits into your SIPP.

Income Withdrawal

Taking income withdrawals may erode the capital value of your fund, especially if investment returns are poor and a high level of income is taken; this could result in a lower income than anticipated in future.

If income withdrawals near, or at, the maximum permitted by HMRC are taken, such income withdrawals may not be sustainable. The higher the pension you choose to receive, the higher the probability that your pension may have to reduce in the future.

If you choose to receive your pension via income withdrawal, there is no longer a requirement to purchase an annuity by your 77th birthday. If you continue income withdrawal after age 77 you must take an income between the minimum and maximum levels specified by HMRC. The maximum income permitted by HMRC will reduce significantly compared to that before age 77. The benefits payable on your death after age 77 will be more restricted and the remaining fund on your death may be subject to significant tax charges, including inheritance tax.

There is no guarantee that annuity rates will improve in the future. If you choose to purchase an annuity, the level of pension you receive when you purchase the annuity may be lower or higher than the pension previously being paid under income withdrawal and/or the annuity you could have purchased previously.

Investments

The value of investments held in your SIPP and the income from them can fall as well as rise. You may get back less than the amount invested.

Past performance is not an indication of future performance and some investments need to be held for the long term to achieve a return.

You will be able to deal in a range of investments. Some investments carry a higher degree of risk than others. The following are some specific examples of this:

- Smaller companies, the price of which can be more volatile and there may be a large difference between the buying and selling prices;
- Overseas investments, which may carry an exchange rate risk, and may be based in less well regulated jurisdictions; and
- Warrants and other highly geared investments, the prices of which are extremely volatile.

Some investments are described as Complex Financial Instruments. If you invest in these you should be aware that you may lose all your money. These investments carry specific risks, which are outlined in the paragraphs below. Before investing in one of these investments you will have to complete an Appropriateness Test, as required by the rules of the Financial Services Authority.

We do not provide investment advice as this is an execution only service. We do provide information about investments, but this is provided solely to enable you to make your own investment decisions and must not be treated as a recommendation. If you need advice to determine whether an investment is suitable for you, you must consult a suitably qualified financial adviser.

If the value of your SIPP is small and/or you deal frequently in small amounts, dealing costs may be disproportionately high and the value of your SIPP may be eroded.

You should note that rules relating to the taxation of capital gains and income from investments are subject to change.

The investment returns may be less than those shown on any illustrations of benefits you receive and the charges may be higher.

Specific Risks of Certain Types of Complex Instruments

Different instruments involve different levels of exposure to risk and in deciding whether to hold certain complex instruments within your SIPP you should be aware of the following points:

Warrants

A warrant gives the holder the right to subscribe for shares or other securities within a specific time period, following which the warrant has no value. A relatively small movement in the price of the underlying security results in a large movement in the price of the warrant. The value of warrants is therefore volatile. You should not buy a warrant unless you are prepared to lose all the money you have invested.

Securitised Derivatives

Securitized derivatives are issued by a financial institution and give the holder the right to acquire or sell one or more types of investment or to speculate on the value of an index during a specific time period. A relatively small movement in the value of the underlying investment or index will result in a much larger movement in the price of the securitized derivative. The price of these investments is therefore volatile. You should not buy a securitized derivative unless you are prepared to lose all the money you have invested.

Convertibles (excluding convertible British Government)

A convertible allows the holder to convert the security into another underlying security on pre defined terms. The convertible could pay a lower rate of return than a non convertible security, and the value of the convertible will be affected significantly by price movements in the underlying security. In some circumstances, because of the link with the value of the underlying security, convertibles can carry a high degree of risk and their value could fall substantially.
